FIELD CLUB CADDY DIES IN AUTO CRASH

Alice Longworth Says

(Special To The News)

ALBUQUERQUE New Mexico, July 28.—The war in Spain is one European conflict that Americans may view objectively without apparent danger of becoming involved.

It does not necessarily affect the fate of any other nation or people. Mountainous Spain has been an isolated segment of Europe since the Spanish world empire ended.

Political unrest in recent years led to the expulsion of King Alfonso who was as harmless and kindly a ruler as existed in Europe. The Spanish republic has been insecure since its foundation and the conservative royalist faction has not ceased to be vocal.

A viewpoint based upon available news up to today justifies the belief that conservative power will return in Spain, if not immediately then at an early date. Such an eventuality does not mean that the world is going Fascist, but merely that the trend toward the left has been halted in Spain, where its present supremacy is at complete variance with the basic characteristics of the majority of the people.

PA NEW OBSERVES

The street department, an East Sider told Pa New today, should dispatch their fixer-uppers to the corner of Adams street and Stanton avenue. The report said a section of the Adams street pavement, heavily traveled at times by route 422 cars, is in need of repairs.

It's hard to believe that August 1 comes next Saturday. Summer is on its way, autumn is rapidly approaching, and here and there New Castle folks are enjoying themselves on annual vacations. Many are abroad and still more are seeing this country.

You'd better watch that double parking in the downtown area! Pa New has kept a close watch on traffic officers and there seems to be an active campaign to break up that street-blocking practice.

***
Work was started this morning on the excavating for paving of Englewood avenue. Trucks, men, and a huge roller and digging machine were in action at an early hour. Work is to be pushed along to completion without delay it is anticipated.

***
With removal of the old frame structure adjoining the new federal building on the public square, a number of sheds in the rear of Beaver street are revealed to public gaze. Some improvement in their appearance would aid the appearance of the locality from a civic beauty standpoint.

***
City firemen attached to Central station were continuing their training work today, familiarizing themselves with the pumping equipment on the Pirsch truck by pumping water from Neshannock Creek and throwing it back into the stream again.

New Castle postmen will believe you if you express the belief that

MRS. GRACE SAPPAS AND ALVINA

For the first time since she "sold" her baby for $50 eight years ago, Mrs. Grace Sappas, Philadelphia mother, has the custody of her nine-year-old daughter Alvina. The child is to remain with her for one month during which time the court is to determine whether Alvina is to be given back to Mrs. Sappas or returned to Mrs. Gertrude Kamber, of Camden, N. J., who "purchased" her as an infant. In explaining the "sale," Mrs. Sappas said that her husband disappeared in 1927, leaving her without funds. Unable to feed her baby she signed a note saying, "I give this child to Mrs. Kamber for adoption for $50." Four years later, the father returned and Mrs. Sappas was financially able to care for the child, but Mrs. Kamber was unwilling to return her.

Spanish Wage Severe Battles On Five Fronts

Heavy Casualties Are Reported In Chief Centers Of Fighting Today

BOTH SIDES SEEK DECISIVE GAINS

May Be Able To Evacuate Americans From Madrid By Thursday

(International News Service)

Over the map of Spain today there spread a vast "T" delineating the nearly 30 of Spain's 50 provinces held in whole or part by the rebels. Leaving the southeastern quarter of Spain, Catalonia, and a narrow strip along the Bay of Biscay in government hands, the cross-piece of the "T" reached from the Atlantic north of Portugal nearly to Catalonia, and the stem was based on Gibraltar.

Blood-red flames of war shot up in every part, with the following chief centers of fighting:
MADRID—The first of three rebel columns fighting through the Guadarrama Mountains near El Escorial, historic resting place of Spanish Monarchs, only 25 miles from Madrid, after suffering heavy losses in an aerial bombardment.

SAN SEBASTIAN—Under a terrible rainstorm, four regiments of rebels fought their way towards the city, while loyalists rushed reinforcements. The rebels succeeded in cutting the road to Irun.

An unregistered voter is a useless voter. See that folks are registered."

Probe Of Slaying Of Co-Ed Hits Snags

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 28.—The murder of Helen Cleveland, New York University co-ed, in room 224 of the Battery Park hotel, became more of an enigma than ever today as the local investigation struck snags and a new angle developed 1,000 miles away.

Professor W. L. Cleveland, the slain girl's uncle, who had been detained in the county jail by Sheriff Laurence E. Brown for questioning, was at liberty. After spending the night at the home of a friend near here, the professor made preparations to motor to his home in Raleigh, N. C.

Sheriff Brown, meanwhile became interested in an unofficial report he received from Boston that a newspaper had sent a correspondent to a Maine resort to interview Mrs. N. M. Cowdin who, with Miss Lydia Everson, of Belmont, Mass., occupied room 225, next door to room 224, on the night of the tragedy.

SEN. VANDENBERG ALSO AT TOPEKA

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOPEKA, Kas., July 28.—Ignoring New Deal attacks on his labor record, Governor Alfred M. Landon today moved forward with his program for relief of drought-stricken areas of Kansas, while awaiting conferences with two outspoken Republican critics of the Roosevelt administration.

Vandenberg and Pinchot
The governor's conferees will be Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, and former Governor Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania. Vandenberg assailed the New Deal for the past two years, concentrating his attack chiefly upon AAA benefit payments. Pinchot, after supporting Roosevelt in 1932, expressed his disgust with the New Deal and endorsed Landon.

Landon was to entertain Vandenberg at a luncheon conference with Senator Arthur Capper. Pinchot, accompanied by Mrs. Pinchot, will be a dinner guest.

The Kansas drought problem was relieved somewhat by heavy showers in many parts of the state. At the governor's direction, meanwhile, state officials appealed to western railroads again for an emergency slash in rates on feed, cattle movements, and water ship.

Report Rebels Near Madrid

Closing In Upon Capital From North Knickerbocker Reports

TORTURE REPORTS ARE CIRCULATED

International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1936, by International News Service)

WITH THE NORTHERN SPANISH REBEL ARMY AT THE FRONT, July 28.—Rebel armies are closing in upon Madrid from the north, and today their headquarters here announced they had come within a stone's throw of El Escorial, on the outskirts of the capital.

Officers in the rebel side are racing the red terror which they believe has gripped Madrid. Fears for the safety of their families, within the Red lines has become profound and whipped the spirits of the white troops to a raging pitch as reports reached here of the torture and murder of civilians.

Few such reports can be authenticated, but headquarters here officially announced one particularly revolting atrocity.

Just beyond Somo Sierra, where the rebel troops of Col. Garcia Escamez have driven through the mountain pass and down to Robregado, are the smoking ruins of a peasant house. In this house the wounded body of the young Fascist leader, Carlos Miralles, lay until he died, after leading 80 youthful aristocrats in an attack upon the Reds.

Shortly after the white forces recaptured Miralles' body, the Reds took the peasant house and, as headquarters assert, they burned it down and with it burned the household of father, mother, and five children as punishment for having harbored an enemy.

War's usual crop of atrocity stories has grown to lush proportions in this Spanish war of classes.

On this side they declare that the Reds in San Sebastian slaughtered fifty aristocrats and tortured others in the approved Ethiopian manner, while still other whites shot themselves rather than risk torture after capture.

It now appears that San Sebastian is not yet entirely in the hands of the rebel army.

Arthur Mometer

Most every day as I plod along I meet my friends who fish, and I have to listen to fairy tales so much that I sometimes wish that there was a law that would be enforced which prohibited fishermen all who wanted to tell of their escapades would be forced to hire a hall. And the tales are practically all the same, though the skies be blue or gray the biggest fish that they had on the trip was the one that got away. Bass or pickerel, trout or pike, they all sound the same to me, as my friends relate what a fight they had, the weather is ninety three.

STORM AT CONNELLSVILLE

Near Tornado Does Damage

One Dead And Scores Wounded In Path Of Last Night's Storm

BROWNSVILLE IN PATH OF BIG GALE

(International News Service)
CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., July 28.—Leaving one dead and scores wounded, a miniature tornado which swept down the Monongahela Valley, uprooting trees, leveling barns and ripping down telephone and light wires, did damage in the hundreds of thousands, it was estimated unofficially here today.

John McCann, 8, of Smock, Pa., was killed instantly and his two companions seriously injured when a sudden gust of wind shattered a grandstand on which they were playing. The McCann boy suffered a broken back and crushed skull. George Kostelnick, 8, and Henry Williams, negro, were gravely hurt, the extent of their injuries as yet undetermined.

In Summit, Pa., 11-year-old Jimmy O'Donovan, stepped on a high tension wire, blown down by the high wind, and was seriously burned. Driven to the Conneltsville hospital, the lad was accompanied by a crew of men who had to cut through nearly 20 uprooted trees strewn across the highway by the storm.

Roof Of Home Taken
Climbing to the second floor of her home in Brownsville to close the windows, Mrs. Smith Patterson witnessed a twister-like gust of wind carry off the roof of her home along with the windows she had intended closing.

Centering chiefly in Conneltsville, Perryopolis, Brownsville and the Colonias, the storm destroyed approximately 30 barns and garages in this sector.

The storm appeared to strike heaviest in Brownsville, where the wind—reaching a gale force estimated at 80 miles an hour—blew over the 60-foot steeple of the Central Presbyterian church.

Nine persons from the Brownsville hospital were treated by doctors and nurses working in conditions reminiscent of the March flood. Candles and flashlights were used to see as bruises and cuts were treated.

Vaccino Zucconi, of Belle Vernon, suffered severe head and back injuries when the wind lifted his truck and turned it over on Route 51, near Uniontown.

Brownsville residents admitted to the hospital were: Mrs. Bertha

O'Neill, Harry Horner, Mrs. Anna Stefan, Steve Rauch, Ethel Ponzo-ski, Sylvester Franz, Vera Latzko. Roaring in from West Virginia, lightning and gale labored together to wreak almost war-like damage. In Pittsburgh the storm was minor. It brought the heaviest rain of the summer, and checked a heat wave that had pushed temperature to above 90 yesterday afternoon.

The toppling steeple at the Brownsville Central Presbyterian church crashed on the body of the structure doing an estimated damage of nearly $8,000.

The Union Supply Company estimated its loss at Colonial No. 3 at $50,000. The company's huge store there was unroofed and wrecked. Damage in the Conneltsville area reached many thousands of dollars.

The World West Wonder show, playing there for a firemen's carnival was swept from its moorings by the gale.

Between 50 and 100 houses were unroofed in the Brownsville district alone, a preliminary checkup showed. Corn and other crops were ruined when beaten to the ground by wind and rain.

Travelling along a five-mile path, the storm wreaked damage of at least $30,000 in Monongahela, Donora, Charlestown and Monessen.

Carnegie police hurried to the Carnegie National Bank armed with shotguns, when the wind grounded wires and set off the burglar alarm.

ing the sheriff Mrs. Cowdin was quoted as having said that about 1 a. m. July 16, she heard piteous pleading and anguished words emanating from room 224. Miss Everson previously had been reported as saying she heard a man's "cultured voice" in the darkened room 224. Shortly before the girl screamed, Miss Everson was quoted as saying the man said "just a minute and you'll be all right, Molly."

Professor Clevenger said so far as he knew no one had ever referred to Miss Clevenger as "Molly." "She had no nickname," said Professor Clevenger. "Her middle name was Irene."

It was Professor Clevenger who found the body of Miss Clevenger at 8:30 o'clock on the morning of July 16. She had been beaten and shot to death seven and one half hours earlier.

Sheriff Brown was so impressed with the reports from the north that he indicated that if the check-up he asked the local sheriff in Maine to make coincides with the unofficial report he had received, he might personally make a trip to Maine.

Uncle Of Slain Girl Says Guests In Hotels Need Better Protection

(Editor's Note: In the following story, dictated exclusively to International News Service, Professor W. L. Clevenger of North Carolina State College, who figured prominently in the Helen Clevenger murder mystery today outlined for the first time his theory of the slaying of his niece who was beaten and shot to death in room 224 of the Battery Park Hotel in Asheville.)

By PROFESSOR W. L. CLEVENGER
(Copyright, 1936, by International News Service)

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 28.—There never was any question in my mind as to the final outcome of the findings in this investigation as they related to me.

It has deeply grieved me to have had to go through the ordeal of investigation in connection with this terrible tragedy, in addition to the grief occasioned by the loss of my dear niece, Helen.

I hope the crime will be solved. I hope this tragedy causes the hotels of the country to give better protection to their guests.

My theory of the crime is this: some one with evil intentions invaded somebody's room. They may have had her room in mind or got into it by mistake. She was the victim.

Who that culprit was I do not know. I have no way of knowing. My sincerest hope is that the authorities will succeed in their efforts to find the slayer.

I deeply appreciate the many messages sent to me by my friends from all parts of the country who expressed their confidence in me at a time when some people might have had an erroneous impression.

Fifty Million For Relief In Drought Areas

WPA And Resettlement Administration Prepares Drought Relief Budgets

By L. W. MEREDITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 28.—WPA and the resettlement administration today prepared budgets calling for an estimated $50,000,000 emergency expenditure for drought relief in the northwestern "dry bowl," the Dakotas, Montana and Wyoming. The expenditures will be about equally divided, it was estimated, between plans states brought back a word of cheer. He told the great plains drought area committee that while the situation was serious, phases of it were not so critical as in 1934.

"The cattle—and that is chiefly a cattle country—are in better condition than they were in 1934," he said. "They are being evacuated rapidly, and at good prices. There is no necessity yet for a federal cattle purchasing program. The cattle that are left, to be held for basic herds and for dairy use, are in better condition than they were in 1934."

more residents are vacationing this summer. "I'll say so," one of the lettermen told PA New today, "there's a bundle of greeting cards in my sack every trip." The post office mail workers also agree that the volume of cards mailed from vacation spots near and far is heavier than in the past few summers.

Enforcement of the parking law is under way here, according to the police docket which shows that almost daily this month some motorists have paid a $1.00 fine for parking too long in one place or parking in a restricted zone.

"The 'Voice of Safety' automobiles which operated here last week have been sent to another city. However, the police hope that the safety campaign of last week will be remembered and the instructions obeyed by motorists and pedestrians."

A little more heat from old Jupiter Pluvius and maybe the once-green grass on the public square will not be quite so brown as it has been. The dry spell was hard on it.

SPANISH WAGE SEVERE BATTLES ON FIVE FRONTS

its early fall, together with collapse of Seville, Segovia, Cordova, and other points, as Toledo fell yesterday, was predicted in Madrid.

VIGO—American Consul William Corcoran, fearing a reign of terror if the rebels there are defeated, put 23 Americans and Cubans aboard a British cruiser, At Fuenterrabia, near San Sebastian, Ambassador Claude G. Bowers prepared to convert the Coast Guard Cutter Cayuga into a "floating embassy" to examine the plight of Americans along the Biscay and Atlantic coasts as far as Vigo.

CEUTA, Morocco, and Palma, Majorca—Government ships and airplanes again bombed these outlying cities.

Deadly Engagements

Madrid, July 28.—Desperately striving for decisive strokes that would turn dogged civil war into quick victory, both rebel and loyal armies today threw their whole strength into drives that brought deadly engagements on five wide fronts.

Rebel offensive and loyalist counter offensive, with casualties running into the thousands, went on in the rugged struggle for control of Madrid. Government forces, after a terrific aerial bombardment of the insurgents in the mountains north of the capital, claimed to have turned back the enemy's western flank, but admitted the rebel center held fast.

Loyal leftists gave the "forward" order to a double column making a piners movement against Saragossa from Barcelona and Valencia, and the Madrid government claimed that Saragossa, Segovia, Cordova and several minor points would be lost to the rebels in a matter of hours.

Fighting in Seville
Seville remained in rebel hands, but a Madrid broadcast reported severe fighting in the heart of the city by the loyalists who had penetrated the rebel defense.

Besides the push against Madrid from the north, the rebels of General Emilio Mola, operating from Burgos, moved nearer to San Sebastian amid furious fighting, while a calamitous defeat of government forces was registered by Moorish invaders almost within sight of Britain's Gibraltar.

General Francisco Franco, ferrying foreign legionnaires and native Moors from Africa by airplane and ship, massed an army of around 6,000 for a drive against Malaga.

Marching northeastward from Gibraltar, the rebels encountered the leftists near Estepona, midway between Gibraltar and Malaga, killing four hundred loyalists and wounding 1,200, while the rebels lost 200 dead.

A clean-up drive was then staged in the town of San Roque, near La Linea, and 60 loyalists were reported executed in the public plaza in groups of ten.

After the government's success in bringing trains from Valencia, on the east coast, American and British embassy officials were hopeful that it would be possible by Thursday to evacuate 160 Americans and hundreds of other foreigners in the capital.

PINCHOT VISITS GOVERNOR LONDON

ments. They also canvassed the midwest oil fields for water pumps to be transported into arid sections for aiding farmers in getting water from rivers and creeks.

Plan More Farm Ponds

A fresh survey of possible farm pond sites was inaugurated. Thus far, 1,100 individual ponds have been constructed on local farms through the state relief agency.

though with federal funds. They have furnished wide relief from water famine, while critical water shortages have developed only in sections where farmers failed to avail themselves of the chance to get the bonds. The entire program was sponsored by London two years ago.

London made it plain meanwhile he would not reply personally to such attacks as that delivered by George L. Berry, federal industrial coordinator and former NRA chief. He will leave such political chores to his friends and Republican orators.

Defenders of the governor's labor record will have a wealth of material to prove him friendly to organized labor. First, he named George Blakely for years president of the Kansas State Federation of Labor, his state labor commissioner. Then, in messages to the legislature, he twice recommended ratification of the child labor amendment, demanded a law modeled upon the federal statute to prevent abuse of injunctions in labor disputes and turned enactment of a prevailing wage law.

The governor's friends were pleased with a tribute paid him by Louis L. Strauss, New York banker; Max Epstein, Chicago business man, and J. A. Harzfeld, Kansas City attorney, praising his religious tolerance. The trio issued a joint statement declaring London was noted for a "deep hatred for all bigotry and injustice toward minority races and religions."

Alma Louise Munnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Munnell, of the East Brook road, and William Kenneth Patton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loy Patton, of the Harlansburg road, were united in marriage Monday, July 27, by Rev. William Sniff, in the parlors of the First Christian church.

Attendees were Ethel Munnell, Elmer Patton and William Stephenson. The bride was attired in a poude blue dress with which white accessories contrasted.

She is a graduate of East Brook high school and the New Castle Business college, and is now employed by the New Castle Grocery company. The groom is also a graduate of the East Brook high school, and is now employed at Isaly's Dairy store.

The couple left on a motor trip to Cleveland exposition and other points of interest. When they return, they will reside for the present, at the bride's home on the East Brook road.

HUTCHISON-REIDER MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Hutchison, of Neshannock avenue, announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Carol Irene, to Herman Leo Reider, of Pollock avenue. The ceremony took place on Friday, July 23, with Justice of the Peace Reynolds, New Bedford road, officiating.

The ceremony was quiet and yet impressive. The bride was attractively gowned in a sheer blue suit with matching accessories. And a shoulder corsage of gardenias and lilies of the valley. The couple was attended by their closest friends, Miss Marie Bauder as maid of honor, and William Phipps as best man.

TEST BEFORE RELEASE

HENCEFORTH, prisoners seeking parole from Michigan prisons must pass a systematic mental examination before being released to society.

"Only a trained psychiatrist can weed out the borderline cases," says Joseph C. Armstrong, state pardon and parole commissioner. "Those cases usually slip by the ordinary penologist and become a hazard to the outside world."

Commissioner Armstrong knows what he is talking about, because Michigan dismissed its former psychiatrist for reasons of economy and discovered that this had been a rather short-sighted move. The problem of paroled men who went bad after release became increasingly worse.

The Michigan experience, therefore, is something for other states to bear in mind.

IN MEMORY OF VIMY RIDGE

Vimy Ridge will always be associated with the Canadians who captured it during the Battle of Arras in April, 1917, and some visible memorial of their exploit was well deserved. That King Edward should unveil it was eminently fitting. In spite of all the efforts of the government to secure his safety when he went to the front, he took the same risks that others took and rather impatiently resented the idea of special protection.

"In dedicating this monument to our comrades who fell during the war," he said on Sunday, "we invoke the splendor of their sacrifice and the consecration of our affection for them rather than of the gunfire which battered this hill twenty years ago." He has always emphasized his comradeship with the men who fought for the Empire, and they have reciprocated his feeling.

It was characteristic of him, also, that he should wish his valor, rather than the bitter struggle, remembered. Not long ago he urged a reconciliation between former enemies. It is true, as President Lebrun said, in his words of welcome, that "the fellowship which the British and French democracies are unceasingly working to develop will bring still closer together in beneficent peace our peoples, worried in the face of future uncertainties."

It would be idle to ignore the danger of two militant dictatorships, against which Anglo-French friendship is the best protection. But it is for the peoples of all countries to diminish these animosities.

PLEASURE-WALKING

Americans frequently upbraid themselves for their growing dependence on automobiles. They recall that their parents or grandparents walked miles to school and church or to visit neighbors. Today we ride to the store or office or movie, even if it is only a block or two away. Some day, it is gloomily forecast, evolution will take away our unused feet.

It is a false picture. W. E. Paddock, in "Yankee," discloses that many people are doing a great deal of walking. They are just more selective about it than was possible in the era before motor cars and good roads.

"Take myself as a fairly representative sample," he writes. "I refuse to climb even one flight of stairs if there is an elevator in the building, and yet I will drive a hundred and twenty miles north so that I may have the pleasure of climbing a three-mile mountain trail. I will not walk from my home to the store, a quarter of a mile, and yet I walk endlessly in the woods during vacation."

He is not alone in his willingness to "walk endlessly" in certain places. On Vermont's Long Trail, a fine trail built especially for hikers, he finds kindred spirits from many states, some of them distant from Vermont.

After all, isn't it sensible to do the day's routine traveling and errand-running in the comfortable, efficient and time-saving auto? And then let the auto take us quickly to a lovely region where walking becomes delightful sport?

TWENTY YEARS OF JAP BEETLES

This year the Japanese beetle is celebrating the 20th anniversary of life in this country. The original settlers, locating at Riverton, N. J., now have billions of descendants, dwelling mainly on the Atlantic seaboard but with outposts reaching from Bangor, Me., to Greenville, S. C.—a range of 850 miles as the crow flies—and westward to the Mississippi. Living at the expense of agriculture and horticulture, they have levied a tribute of many millions.

Optimistic entomologists have many times in the past decade pinned their faith on imported natural enemies of the Japanese beetle, which for various reasons having to do with new environment, did not perceptibly restrain their prey. But the supervisor of plant, pest control of the New Jersey department of agriculture now believes that a native nematode which feeds upon and destroys the larvae of the enemy, if sufficiently encouraged, may do the trick.

Since these nematodes—minute worms—do not exist throughout the area of beetle infestation, the job is to propagate and distribute them. It is susceptible of proof on paper that this can be done. The female beetle has 40 children per season. The nematode has a family of 11 every two weeks. In the long run the little worms, if given transportation facilities equal to those enjoyed by the beetle, which travels by train, truck and automobile, ought to win.

But while the country waits for the nematode population to outstrip the beetle increase it had better rely on protective poisons for plants. They work. All other expedients have repeatedly failed.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

That is, child labor is wicked and heartless unless the child gets $1500 a week.

Time effects wondrous changes. Next February this insufferable summer will be just a pleasant memory.

Future wars will be less dreadful in one respect. The Army now has machines to peel potatoes.

The cause of radicalism isn't always economic. Anything that makes you sore at the world will do it.

If environment means anything, the latest Dionne infant should develop into a rugged individualist.

Between the heat, the revolution in Spain and our heroic labors to prevent the garden from withering before our eyes, we haven't had much time lately to worry about the fate of Haile Selassie.

A Useful Gadfly.
Germany Really Spends.
Is Uncle Sam Too Poor?
That Lump Of Gold.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

LORD ROTHERMERE continues to play, for England, the useful part of editorial gadfly, stinging his government with useful, pleasant reminders. He is useful in peace, stimulating national defense, as his brother, the late Lord Northcliffe, creator of the "Northcliffe press", was useful in the big war, making slugs, muddling, unimaginative Englishmen realize that it was to be a BIG AND LONG WAR.

Englishmen in the British war department recently assured our dull-minded military gentlemen in Washington that Mussolini could not possibly conquer Ethiopia in less than three years and would probably be defeated.

Similar British, in 1914, convinced that they and their "gallant allies" could wipe out Germany in a few months, refused to take the war seriously until Northcliffe woke them up with savage exposure of their near-sighted stupidity.

They burned Northcliffe in effigy, then. They ought now to build a monument to him at least as high as the Nelson monument in Trafalgar Square.

OUR OWN Washington geniuses who think the United States needs only a "sample" air force, not a real one, will not be interested in any facts on European war preparations, but here are a few.

The information that Britain is spending THIS YEAR for national defense the sum of 187,638,000 pounds, close to a billion dollars, is printed by Rothermere with the comment:

"Good, but not nearly enough." Rothermere then gives information concerning Germany's war expenditures.

"That may seem an enormous sum. It is far from impressive when compared with what Germany is doing. According to figures which Mr. Churchill has given, and which have not been seriously challenged, in the last three years Germany has spent on her armaments the colossal amount of 1,500,000,000 pounds, of which about 600,000,000 pounds was expended last year.

"This sum of 600,000,000 pounds is more than three times the amount that Great Britain has voted so far this year. Yet money spent on munitions in Germany goes twice, three or even four times as far as money spent in Great Britain, and it is approximately correct to say that Great Britain is really expending less than one-sixth of the German amount.

"The conclusion is painful but irresistible. In the vital matter of air strength Great Britain is still losing ground. Nor is she even now concentrating her principal effort on the air. For the navy 81,000,000 pounds is voted this year, for the army 55,000,000 pounds, for the air 50,700,000. Yet in this iron world of today a nation unable to hold its own in the air is doomed."

BRITAIN will spend on her fighting fleet THIRTY YEAR more than two hundred and fifty million dollars, and that seems TOO LITTLE to Rothermere, and other intelligent Englishmen.

Why would Rothermere, Hitler, Japan and others think of OUR puny efforts to build a fighting air fleet? They would think that a country rich enough (and silly enough) to lose ten thousand million dollars in repudiated war loans, to build airships in other countries, might find money to build a fleet for itself.

THERE ARE still geese who imagine the United States is protected from air and other attack by the oceans on both sides. We even have super-geese in Washington that spend public money on popguns scattered along our coast, called "coast defense" guns, as though invading airplanes would kindly fly low over those guns.

Foreign countries know the location of every one of them, since we keep nothing to ourselves, and besides no big or little gun could interfere with the operations of an enemy plane flying high and fast, or an enemy submarine quietly entering the harbor of a great city at night.

You remember the German submarine that visited us in the war.

REMEMBER, also, that it is less than 25 years since Northcliffe offered and paid a reward of ten thousand pounds to anybody that would fly across the little English channel. Today any nation that chose to do it could send a fleet of fighting planes over the Atlantic or Pacific, and before long, flying those oceans will be no more of a feat than flying the channel or the Hudson river.

When that day comes, it will be too late for defense. That cannot be improvised over night, as our dollar-a-year-and-worth-it patriots of the big war discovered, when in a great hurry, they spent hundreds of millions on airplanes that would do almost anything but fly.

THERE WOULD be uncomfortable hours for our big cities if Europe or Asia should suddenly decide that the time had come to fly over and take away that big lump of gold that we have hidden in a hole in the ground.

What the country needs is some of that gold changed into an adequate air fleet ABOVE the ground. Go to Europe, look around, study the angry newspapers, and you will find the worried faces of public men, and you will know it.

INFORMERS

Immigration officials say the largest percentage of illegal entry cases they get are turned in by informers. Once an alien gets himself safely smuggled in, he is mighty hard to catch without the aid of the informer. They are the government's best weapons against the elaborate smuggling racket and its ingenious devices. One of the most prevalent of the latter, incidentally, is the purchase of birth certificates from foreign countries not under quota.

At a meeting of the chiefs of police held in Philadelphia it was suggested that police be given the power to arrest on sight all those who violate the auto laws instead of summoning them as the law is now. Only the state police can arrest on sight now. That sounds good, as hundreds never pay any attention to a ticket.

WASHINGTON AT A GLANCE

Lemke Makes Moderate Talk

Addresses National Press Club Members At Capital Recently

REVEALS SELF AS POLITICIAN

Central Press Washington Bureau 602 Times-Herald Bldg.

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Congressman William Lemke of North Dakota, speaking as the Union party's presidential candidate before the National Press club recently, made an unexpectedly moderate talk.

The Dakotan should not be assessed as practically a pure fanatic, like some of his associates. He may be a bit fanatical, but he is a politician, too.

He recognizes the difference between an audience of the faithful (a mixture of faiths but brimful of sincerity) in Cleveland and an audience of hard-boiled newspapermen in Washington.

He adapted himself to Press club conditions and did it remarkably well.

DESIRES TOWNSEND SUPPORT

Of course Lemke wants the support of the Townsends.

He also wants the support of the Coughlinites, whose leader has pronounced Townsendism as plain economic foolishness.

He could do this in Cleveland, where every speaker (except Norman Thomas) was cheered, whatever he said. He knew he could not be on both sides at once before the National Press club and he didn't try. He sidestepped very cleverly.

The correspondents tried hard to put him "on the spot." They failed.

AN UNIVERSAL BELIEF

He is, he said, a Townsendite to the extent of believing that a worker who has toiled all his life, increasing the national wealth, is entitled to be supported out of it in his old age.

Well, everyone believes that. But how much should the older get, and how should the money be raised?

That, answered Lemke, is a question for congress to answer. This is nothing like as definite as the Townsend program.

If the California doctor is satisfied with so intangible a plan, I'd be surprised. I would look for a split between the factions as soon as the doctor realizes that the Dakotan favors the former's policy only in the broadest principle; not at all in detail.

Reconcile them all?

In short:

Lemke can spellbind his own followers, the Townsends, the Coughlinites and the Gerald L. K. Smithites in Cleveland.

He also can stall off questions in Washington.

But can he reconcile all his responses to all these conflicting queries as the campaign progresses? I doubt it.

NO CHANCE

Lemke spoke of himself as a future White House tenant.

"I will do," he said, before the National Press club, "as president, so-and-so."

I've no notion that he thinks he will be elected president.

I do think he has a remote idea that his Union party movement may throw the presidential selection into the house of representatives, which, in itself, would be a monumental triumph for him. But, gosh! What chance!

He certainly flatters himself if he imagines that.

A GOOD HINT

Lemke made one good point before the National Press club.

Did he consider himself a representative presidential candidate? someone asked.

Well, said Lemke, about 60 per cent of the delegates at the Democratic convention in Cleveland were Democratic officeholders; about 60 per cent of the delegates at the Republican convention in 1928 were Republican officeholders.

His crowd, he asserted, seemed to him to be more representative than that.

He suggested that delegateships be barred to partisan officeholders in future.

Not a bad hint!

TO LEAD HIS GROUP

Lemke will be licked for president. That is a cinch. He knows it, too.

But he is running for re-election to the house of representatives also.

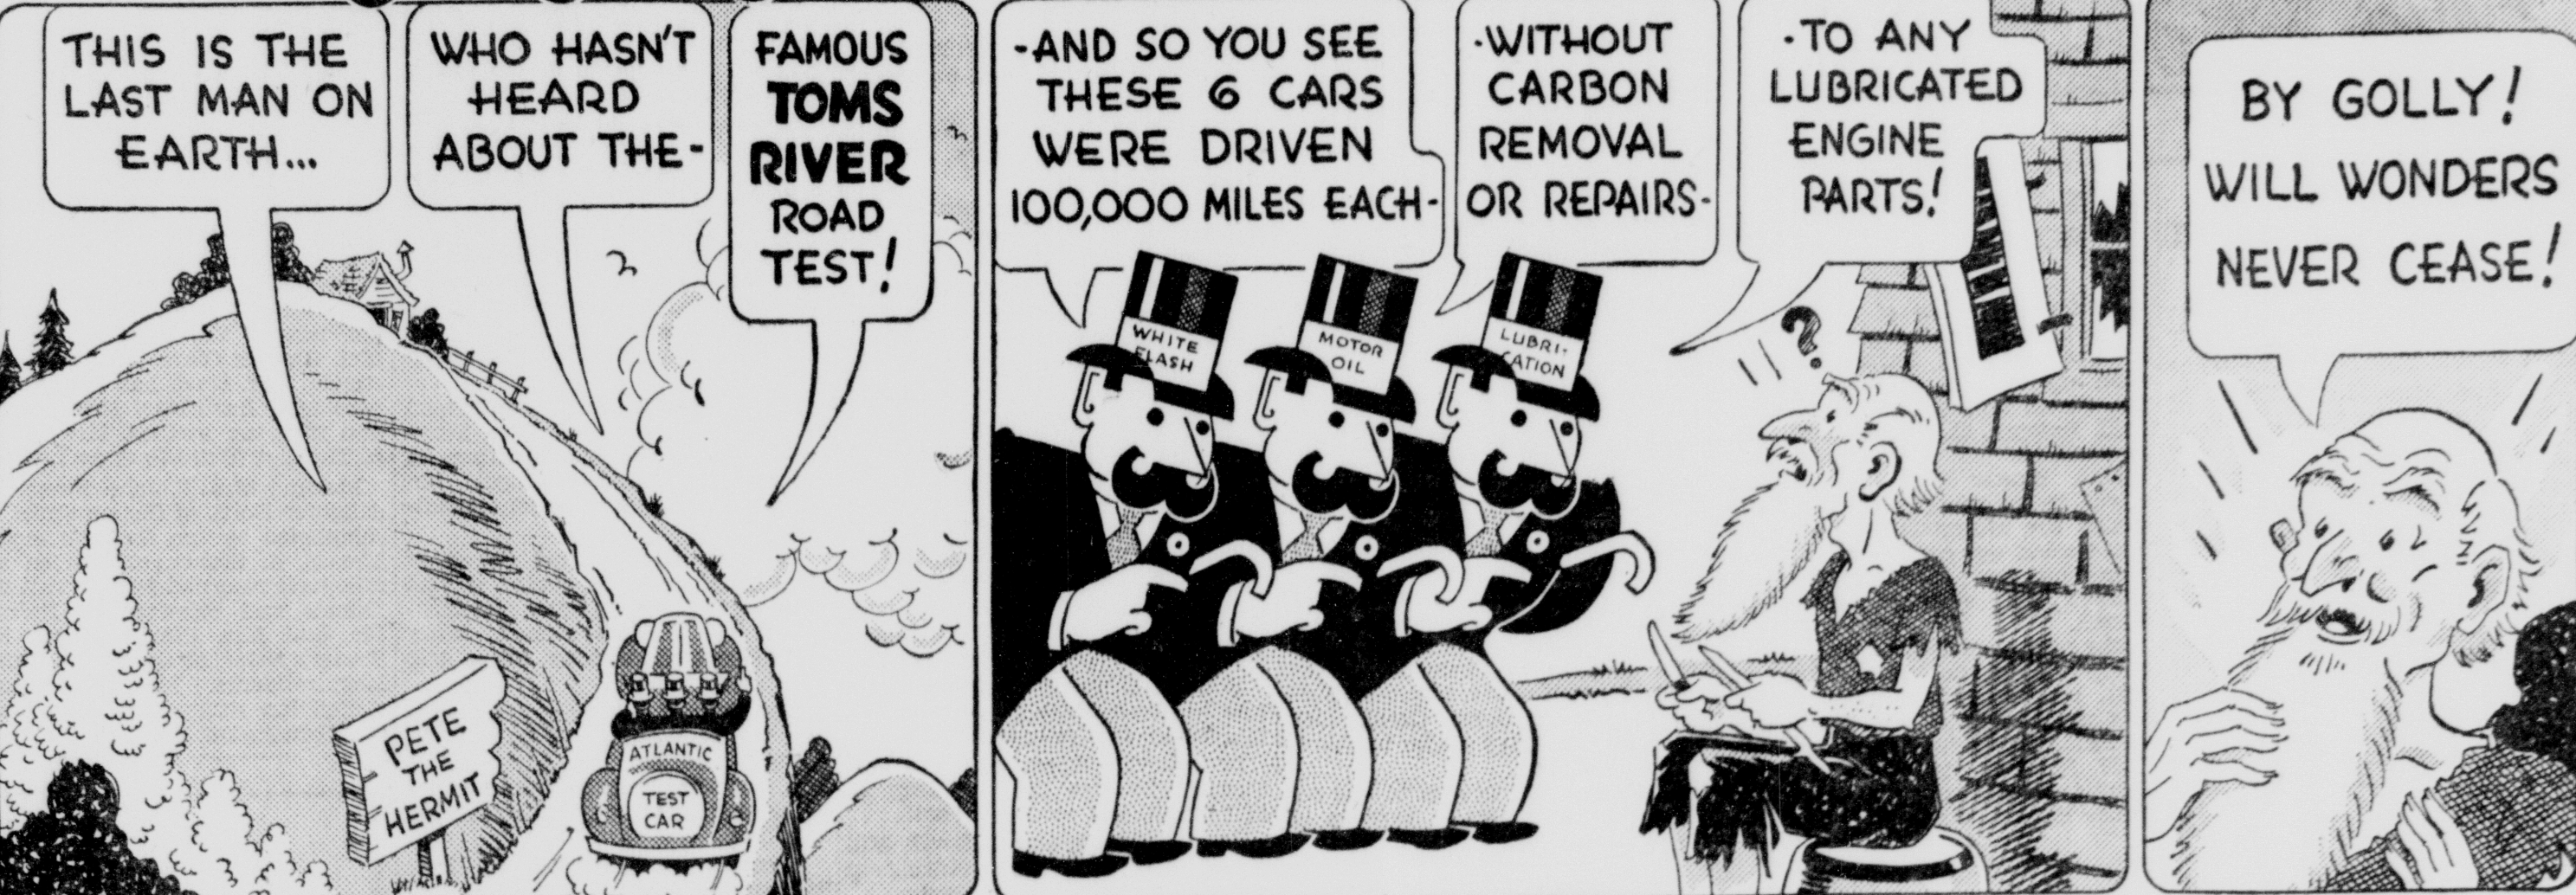

That he probably will win. In the next congress he will be the leader of his group.

He will get prominence, if nothing else.

A GOOD EXAMPLE TO FOLLOW

THAT Toms River Road Test set an example which all other motorists can easily follow. It was a scientific test, you know — and, being scientific, can be duplicated.

If you want Toms River results, you start your car when new on Atlantic White Flash, Atlantic Motor Oil, and Atlantic Lubrication — and then obey the traffic laws as to speed, and the instructions of your car's manufacturer as to maintenance.

Naturally, you cannot expect even Atlantic Products to restore metal that is already worn; but you will find that they all but stop future deterioration. Use All Three Atlantic Products regularly — and watch your performance go up, and your operating costs go down!

On Court House Hill

In behalf of the county commissioners County Solicitor William McElwee, Jr., has presented to court a petition to file in the prothonotary's office proofs of publication of the sale of unredemmed land by the county. The list recently advertised has not yet all been sold, and the sale has been adjourned until August 1.

Letters of administration have been granted by Register and Recorder William R. Hanna to Mary Isaac E. Anwyll in the estate of the late Isaac E. Anwyll of South New Castle borough.

Ray H. Aylesworth, receiver for the Pittsburgh Company of Ellwood City, presented a petition to court, asking leave to sell a property in Ellwood City to Stefano and Theresa Galati for $2000, and another to B. E. and Clair Zeigler for $9600. The petition was granted.

County commissioners will open bids on next Wednesday for a carpet to be laid in court room No. 1. This room has not been carpeted for many years and is badly in need of a better floor covering.

Mr. Seavy set his camera away down on East Washington street at the intersection of the alley east of the Wright building. Mr. Woodward, his assistant, and several of the county officials posed inside the railing on the belfry and Woodward and his assistants took a position higher up on the unguarded ledge around the steeple.

In many cases Mr. Stevenson finds that the owners of the land were not furnished with copies of the leases. He says that the farmer should always insist in getting a copy of the lease. He should also see that the lease is not perpetual, as it is a serious drawback in case the farmer desires to apply for a federal farm loan.

N. P. Woodward, who has just finished painting the court house steeple, has suggested to the county commissioners that they place a flood light on one corner of the roof in order that the aluminum dome may be illuminated at night. The flood light would illuminate two sides of the dome. Woodward offered to provide the light free. The commissioners have it under advisement.

Weather Stations To Combat Drought Planned In Alaska

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The key that will unlock the mysterious secret of devastating droughts may be found through the establishment of weather stations in the Arctic regions.

In this vast, icy region is one starting point of the great masses of air that flow down upon the United States which, in conflict with other masses from the torrid zone, produce the rainfall that means the abundant life for the farmer.

Weather Stations
Government scientists, dismayed by the lack of information from these vital regions of the north, already are discussing the feasibility of establishing weather stations there.

While the weather bureau has a station at Point Barrow, Alaska, in the land of icebergs and Polar bears, little information can be obtained from the Arctic regions in North-western Canada and Siberia.

"We don't know just what is happening out there," said Dr. J. B. Kincer, chief of the division of climate and crop weather.

Deep Curiosity
The latest phenomena of the present drought has aroused deep curiosity among all government scientists.

In the last few days a high pressure area moving down from the Hudson Bay region produced relatively cool temperatures from the Central Ohio Valley eastward. But a low pressure area from Western Canada let loose a record-breaking blanket of heat in the Great Plains areas in the United States.

A continuous recording of atmospheric conditions in the Arctic regions, the scientists say, might unfold the answer to the drought cycles.

Reach Conclusions
In spite of feverish activity in many quarters to evacuate the "dust bowl" and change its character, weather bureau scientists reached two very definite conclusions.

These are that man is not responsible for the drought and there is no certainty that it will end with the present year.

While dust storms and suffering from drought have been accentuated by cultivation of portions of the Western Plains area which may have been designed for grazing only by nature, breaking of the soil alone didn't cause drought, Kincer said.

Discuss Legislation Needed For Schools

Superintendent's Conference Is Being Held At Pennsylvania State College

(Special To The News)

STATE COLLEGE, July 28.—Needed legislation for the improvement of the Pennsylvania school system was the topic discussed this afternoon at the opening session of the fourteenth annual superintendent's conference held at the Pennsylvania State College.

Papers on the legislation needed to promote educational progress in the State and on the positive and negative types of school legislation were delivered by Dr. Clarence E. Ackley, director, bureau of professional licensing of the State Department of Public Instruction and by Superintendent E. C. Hartwell of the Buffalo, N. Y., public school system. Mr. Hartwell is a member of the summer faculty at the College.

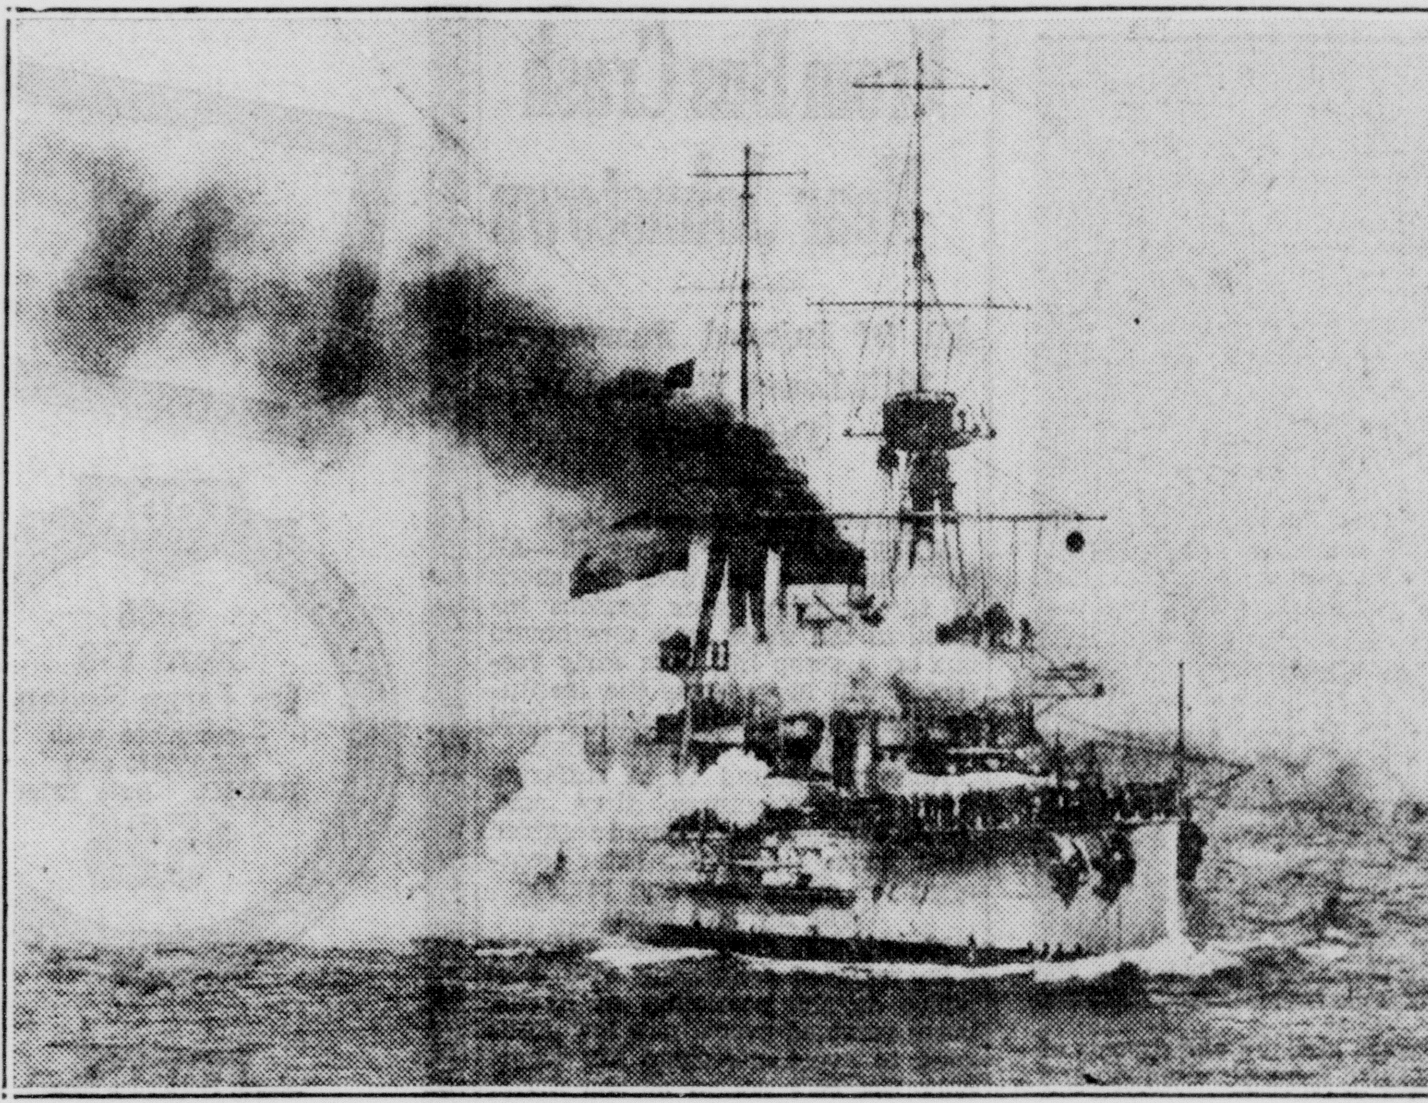

Following an address on "What Is Sociology" delivered by Dr. Willard Waller, head of the division of sociology at the college, Superintendent Orris H. Auman of the Steelton public schools led an open discussion and county superintendents met in a special session.

Dr. Willard E. Givens, executive secretary, National Education Association, will speak tonight on American youth and its problems. The trade and industrial program of tomorrow will be outlined by John A. McCarthy, New Jersey State Supervisor of trades and industries, Trenton.

The conference continues Wednesday and Thursday. On Thursday it meets jointly with the Pennsylvania Vocational Education Association, the annual conference of which continues Friday and Saturday.

Liquor Board Will Cooperate In Safety Drive

Will Seek To Eliminate "Sudden Death" Drunken Driving On State Highways

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 28.—The State Liquor Control Board today joined the governor's highway safety council in its drive to "end sudden death" caused by drunken driving on Pennsylvania's highways.

In the first phase of a long-range educational program, the board this week will release for display in its 550 state stores and behind the bars of many licensees number one in a series of photo-posters depicting the accident horrors of drunken driving.

Walter T. Grosscup, chairman of the board, said the first poster, to go out Wednesday, would begin a series of 12 to be issued during the next six months. Each poster will picture the wrecked car of a drunken driver as shown from the photographic files of the state highway patrol, Grosscup explained.

"Every Pennsylvanian should realize he has a part in our liquor control system, created by his laws, financed by his taxes, and in the profit of which he shares," Grosscup declared. "He also shares in the duties and responsibilities of social control, and that means not only control of himself, but control of the vicious few who know no restraint and acknowledge no obligations."

"If people will prevent drunken driving at the turn of the ignition switch, there will be practically no disasters to follow."

Library Books

—And Comments
(By the Free Public Library)

Invaluable for women who have to speak in public, prepare papers, or introduce speakers is Mrs. Eudora Ramsey Richardson's new book, "The Woman Speaker," to which Mrs. Geline MacDonald Bowman has written a foreword.

The author's preface contains directions for using the handbook. At the end of each chapter assignments are made for definite, specific practice. The author proceeds upon the theory that any intelligent woman can learn to express her thoughts clearly and carefully before an audience, and succeeds in inspiring a like confidence in her readers. While she avoids any appearance of laying down a formula, she discusses the report, the book review the occasional speech the radio speech and the political speech.

Mrs. Richardson's experience as head of the English department of a woman's college as field director of the National American Woman Suffrage association as field representative of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs and as an officer in a number of women's organizations, serves her well in the writing of this handbook.

It is believed that her book will be in demand by many women of New Castle.

Accident Occurs Near Pittsburgh — Barbara Ann Hasley, 4, Is Victim

PITTSBURGH, July 28.—A projected trip to New Castle to visit a physician today had plunged an impoverished Detroit family into tragedy.

Barbara Ann Hasley, 4, was killed as her father, Hurley, was driving the family to New Castle where the child was to be examined by a physician. Her father had just earned enough for medical attention for the child after 18 months of idleness.

Hasley was believed to have lost control of the car on a curve in the Stoops Ferry road. The machine struck a guard rail and overturned, killing the child almost instantly.

Hasley and his wife, Pauline, suffered shock and bruises as did their son, Gerald, 3.

Boy Robber To Get Parole In Omaha, Nebraska

Heated Protests Gain Parole To Private Farm For Young Boy Of Seven

(International News Service)
OMAHA, Neb., July 28.—Bright-eyed, precocious Delbert Flynn, who at 7 years of age was sentenced to the Industrial School at Kearney, Neb., for his many small thefts, today was virtually assured of freedom within a week or two.

Under a rising storm of protest against the incarceration of a child so young, officials have completed arrangements to have him paroled to the Omaha Child Welfare association. He will be placed on a private farm.

Heated Protests
New York, July 28.—Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, president of the New York Child Welfare association, today declared the case of seven-year-old Delbert Flynn, sentenced to a 14-year term in a Nebraska reformatory for petty pilfering according to Doctor Wynne, should "arouse the whole country."

"The lad is just a normal boy and his sentence appears to be something out of the middle ages," Doctor Wynne added. He said that investigation thus far disclosed young Dell, "whose home life was not at all happy because of domestic discord," was arrested for stealing onions from a farmer.

"Dell's mother evidently despaired very quickly of correcting her son, because the records show that she asked that he be sent away until he reached manhood," Doctor Wynne said.

"A terrific sentence, it seems to me, with a shocking chance that when he does emerge, it may only to become a criminal as a result of his jail companionships."

Jap Army Leaders Propose Reform In Government

(International News Service)
TOKYO—Army leaders are reportedly preparing a set of highly significant and independent proposals for administrative reform of the government and the cabinet.

Since the February 26 assassinations, army men had become quiet in their shouts for a political reform program but with the close of the emergency diet session, held under martial law conditions, executives of the powerful military establishment who followed closely the diet's proceedings are apparently dissatisfied with the attitude of Premier Koki Hirota's parliamentary procedure. Those in uniform would attain a sweeping change to seal the delicate aftermath of the revolt, according to a statement in the Asahi newspaper.

Army men felt it incumbent upon themselves to tell the government how it should reform, says the account, and will request the appointment of ministers without portfolio.

Nine Recovering From Bus Crash Near Johnstown

All Of Injured Passengers Will Leave Hospital In Few Days

(International News Service)
JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 28.—All improving and well over the shock of the accident, nine persons injured in the wreck of a Greyhound bus on a steep hill here early yesterday will likely leave the institutions within the next two days, local hospital attaches reported today.

None was found to be suffering from bone fractures, they said. Those less seriously injured resumed their journey yesterday after treatment for minor cuts and bruises.

Will Reroute Buses
Meanwhile Greyhound officials were reported conferring with local police on the possibility of having buses rerouted over a new low grade road to avoid the steep hill where only the cool action of the driver saved the vehicle's 24 occupants from death or more serious injury.

Realizing the bus was out of control, Clay Worthington, 33, the driver, ran the heavy carrier into an embankment. There it overturned, injuring nine of the 24 passengers.

Frankstown hill, where the accident occurred, four years ago was the scene of a wreck in which three men riding in a truck were killed. At that time a coroner's jury recommended that all heavy traffic be diverted.

Lindbergh And Goering Dine

Nazi Air Minister And Famous Flier Discuss Hunting Of Wild Boars

(International News Service)
BERLIN, July 28.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh had luncheon today at the home of Air Minister General Hermann Wilhelm Goering, sometimes referred to as No. 2 man of the Nazi Reich, and as Chancellor Adolf Hitler's right hand man.

If Col. Lindbergh accepts Gen. Goering's second invitation as he did the first, he will become a hunter of wild boar, for the air minister asked the American flyer to accompany him on a future hunt. After the luncheon the two inspected Goering's extensive hunting collection, including boar head trophies and long spears with which they are killed.

Hamilton Makes Sweeping Claims

Says Landon Will Carry Every State North Of Ohio River In Fall

(International News Service)
INDIANAPOLIS, July 28.—Gov. Alfred M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee, will carry every state north of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi river, John D. M. Hamilton, youthful G. O. P. national chairman, predicted here today following an extensive tour of the east.

Hamilton added that the Kansas governor would lead in Nebraska and Oklahoma.

"I'll tell you by how many hundreds of thousands will carry Indiana after I have finished my conferences with the Republicans here today."

He will meet some 2,000 Hoosier party chieftains.

Hamilton beamed when he discussed his party's chances in New York state.

"We will roll up a majority of 750,000 in upper New York state and will carry the state by from 500,000 to 600,000," he said.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, was assailed by Hamilton for his support of President Roosevelt.

"You can't assess a workman for a campaign slash fund without arousing his resentment," Hamilton declared and added that he referred to the activities of the mine union head.

House Adjourns Until Wednesday

Awaits Action By State Senate On Compromise Relief—Tax Program

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, July 28.—Roundly booed by scores of "hunger marchers" who jammed the gallery, the house of representatives met for a scant 15 minutes today and adjourned until noon tomorrow to await senate action on a compromise relief-tax program.

Lacking a calendar of business, the lower chamber barely observed the formality of convening. The center of all legislative activity for the day remained in the trouble-ridden senate, where the mass of unemployed already had resumed its taunting of senators deadlocked over the tax program.

An hour after its scheduled starting time, the senate had not yet convened.

San Francisco And Oakland Bridge Is Nearly Complete

By EDWARD S. SULLIVAN
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—The dream of California pioneers—the linking of San Francisco and the cities east of San Francisco Bay with a bridge—was almost a reality today, with completion of the major steel work on the $77,000,000 San Francisco-Oakland span.

The airy spaces above the bay, never known only to the seabirds, hummed with activity as workmen rushed to complete the remaining one per cent of the bridge for its scheduled opening to traffic November 12, and as work began on the first buildings of the Golden Gate International Exposition, to be held on the shoals of Yerba Buena Island in mid-bay.

Flag Is Raised

A fifteen-cent American flag, fluttering bravely, marked the completion of the steel work. It was purchased hurriedly when engineers found that the usual large flag used to celebrate the completion of each unit, had been taken by souvenir hunters.

The flag signalled the union of San Francisco and the Eastbay with an eight-and-one-half-mile ribbon of steel. The last link was a heavy cord of steel completing the upper deck structure. Its placing had been held up for several weeks by the engineers to permit the huge suspension span to adjust itself under the weight of paving and atmospheric conditions.

Much Concrete Laid

As work on the span went into the home stretch, Chief Engineer Charles H. Purcell reported that 1,840 linear feet of concrete paving had been laid on the automobile deck during the last week. At the same time, the finishing touches were put on the great bridge cables—the wrapping of them with galvanized wire was 66 per cent complete.

Only a few gaps in the paving and the erection of three tower hoods now remain before automobiles can pass across the bay, fulfilling the dream of San Francisco's legendary Emperor Norton of the gold-rush days, who "decreed" seventy-five years ago that the bay should be bridged.

AROUND CITY HALL

Relative to the request of the Sylvan Heights golf advisory board that a water softener be placed at the golf clubhouse, City Engineer Glenn R. Troop, told council Monday he proposed to ask the WPA for the services of plumbers to inspect and clean pipes to increase the water pressure. This will improve the situation for the time being, pending definite recommendations by the engineer's department concerning the desired water softener.

Police vacations are in full swing now. Seven men returned to their police duties Monday and eight others departed for various places, some on sight-seeing expeditions and others on fishing expeditions. Those who returned Monday were Mayor Charles E. McGrath delivered some stiff words from his chest yesterday when, relatives to an alleged unauthorized dump in Sampson street, a water nuisance in the same thoroughfare and a water menace in West Washington street, he asked: "How can we get people to establish homes if someone injures them?" According to information which developed in council someone started a dumping ground in Sampson street and someone also covered over a water course. The state was blamed for raising the grade at West Washington and Beaver streets, causing water to flow into business places. The mayor believes that the parties responsible should be forced to correct the alleged evils and the city solicitors have been given instructions to pore into the alleged nuisances for the purpose of effecting remedies.

City solicitor's assistant, Gilbert E. Long, has informed the council that legal representatives of the estate of Ellen McCart, Neshaunack boulevard, have discontinued their appeal from the viewers' award allowing $375.00 damages to the estate in the proceeding of No. 57, March court term, 1934. Attorney Long has checked the record and said he found that the appeal was discontinued by a paper filed July 24, 1936, in behalf of the estate and that the council for the estate anticipating payment of the award receipted therefore on the record of the same date and the estate counsel wishes the money paid.

WATER NUISANCE CLAIM IS MADE

During a meeting of city councilmen, held Monday in the city hall, the solicitors of the city were instructed to conduct an investigation and ascertain who is responsible for the closing of a natural water course in Sampson street which, according to reports has caused a water nuisance. It is reported the water course formerly was an open ditch. An eighteen inch pipe was laid toward the Shenango river. However, it was not sufficient to carry off the water, according to reports. It was indicated by the council that the party or parties responsible for the condition near the Loughlin coal company would be requested to remedy the situation.

Similar to today: As lonesome as the distant ringing of bells and cawing of hens on a quiet Sunday morning.

ASK MORE FUNDS FOR SCHOOL BUDGETS

BUTLER, Pa., July 28.—In an address to taxpayers from Butler, Lawrence and Beaver counties here last night, C. V. Shoup, executive director of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers League, requested all taxpayers to see that their school districts made an entry in their current budgets for additional state funds under the terms of the Ziesenheim acts.

"The General Assembly last year passed a law to appropriate $25,000,000 of state funds for the schools of the state. Therefore, I say to you it is your duty to see that your school directors make application for state funds in accordance with the terms of the Ziesenheim acts."

The law provides for corresponding reduction in school taxes.

Sensation In Thorpe Case

Dr. Franklin Thorpe Answers Complaint Filed By His Wife Mary Astor

INTIMATE DETAILS OF DIARY AIRED

(International News Service)
LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Intimate personal secrets, assertedly jotted down in the diary of Mary Astor, were recorded in court today as the film star's husband, Dr. Franklin Thorpe, in a cross-petition charged she is "an unfit and improper person" to care for their four-year-old daughter, Marylyn.

The cross-petition concluded a sensational day of charges and counter charges in which Miss Astor sought to make her husband admit he was married to "Lillian Lawton Miles" at the time he purported to be married to her.

Doctor Files Paper

On advice of his attorneys, Dr. Thorpe refused to answer any of these allegations and filed the paper which threw a bombshell in the already complicated case.

Dr. Thorpe's petition contained the following excerpt said to be from Miss Astor's diary dated Feb. 6, 1935:

"Why I keep writing things down in this book I don't know. It seems to help me for some reason. I am such a muddle-headed person that I love to tie myself down—my thoughts down—so they won't go skidding off in all directions."

"Then, too, maybe Marylyn some day would like to know what sort of a person her mother was, and maybe she will be consoled when she makes mistakes and gets into jams to know that her mother was a champion at making mistakes. I blush a little (very little) at the idea of her reading some of the stuff in this book. I have been and am such a fool."

Most botanists believe the original color of flowers was green. Primeval types are green, even to this day.

Unprecedented Scenes As Legislature Considers Relief Fund Deadline

HOPE FOR SOLUTION OF CRISIS TODAY

By ARTHUR H. WAKELEE
International News Service Staff Correspondent
HARRISBURG, July 28.—Amid scenes of unprecedented disorder, in which a riotous gallery of jobless demonstrators delayed adjournment efforts for nearly two hours, the state legislature adjourned early today without taking action on the relief bill.

Hundreds of "hunger marchers," stirred into a wild demonstration when the senate moved to cease work for the night with the financing of a relief program still in the hands of a conference committee, broke into a bedlam of shouts, screams and jeers. With brief interruptions, the demonstration—unparalleled in state legislative annals—lasted from 11:10 p. m. until 1 a. m.

Efforts Are Fruitless
The efforts of the jobless to force a resumption of state direct relief, now cut off for a full week, were unavailing despite their demonstration. After jeering the legislators and yelling down efforts to call the roll on the adjournment motion for practically two hours, the unemployed delegations in the senate gallery finally gave out and permitted the motion to be voted on, shouting a threat in conclusion: "We will stop our demonstration now for a temporary period. But this is a warning of what you'll get if you don't get to work on this relief program."

The motion to adjourn, as finally passed by a vote of 21 to 10, was opposed by six Democrats and four Republicans.

The motion was approved only after the howling jobless in the gallery, numbering nearly 300, permitted the roll to be called. Earlier, the motion had been carried in a poll of the senate body, with senators approaching the clerks at the rostrum to record their votes by voice. The procedure, however, was not allowed by Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy, presiding. A majority of the Democrats present and Senator George L. Reed, Dauphin Republican, refused to vote in the poll, started by GOP leaders on the floor in an effort to bring an end to the delayed roll call.

Terrific Din Set Up
Legislative action was impossible in the chambers, because of the terrific din set up in the gallery by the unemployed who at one point, as senate leaders conferred at the rostrum, called out:

"Are you considering a motion to clear the galleries down there? If you are, we advise you don't try it. You couldn't do it."

Those voting against the adjournment motion included Senators Anthony Cavalcante, Fayette; Edward R. Frey, Allegheny; John J. McCreech, Philadelphia; Walter S. Pytko, Philadelphia; Frank W. Ruth, Berks, and Edward J. Thompson, Centre, Democrats, and Senators Max Aron, Philadelphia; Frank J. Harris, Allegheny; John R. K. Scott, Philadelphia, and Harry Shapiro, Philadelphia, Republicans.

Shouts and chants from the gallery were interspersed by cheers and sharp whistles, accompanied by the stamping of feet and pounding of gallery rails with sticks that splintered and flew off to the floor below. Each move to start a roll call was answered with a renewed outburst from the tumultuous crowd which has been camping in the capitol since last Tuesday when state aid for the state's half a million needy was stopped.

Believe Agreement Near
Attempts of a conference committee to find agreement on a tax anticipation note issue to start up the relief machinery were unsuccessful last night and were to be continued this morning.

With Gov. George H. Earle on record that he would approve a $35,000,000 issue of tax anticipation notes if that was all the Republicans would give, agreement on the financing of the program was regarded as near. In making his statement, the chief executive predicted another special session was inevitable if only the $35,000,000 is provided, said:

"Before I'll let the people starve, I'll take as much as I can get, with the responsibility for its shortcomings resting on the Republicans."

GOP members of the senate finance committee, meanwhile, issued a statement charging the administration's attitude on the tax program was "levying $14,500,000 of unnecessary taxes on the people of Pennsylvania."

Dog Carries News From Road To House On Farm

Mrs. Scott Shoaff of the East Brook road is indeed proud of her little bulldog, "Dick", and she has all the cause in the world to be proud of him.

The Shoaff home is situated about one-fourth of a mile from the main road, and along this road each evening comes Miss Doris Maxwell with Shoaff's copy of The New Castle News. The out-of-the-way tramp up to the house by the paper girl was done away with recently when it was found that the dog would carry the paper to the house.

Each afternoon at exactly 4:15 the dog is at the roadside waiting for Doris, and each evening at approximately the same time she rides along on a bicycle with the paper.

The News is placed in the dog's mouth, and without any instructions whatsoever he turns and runs back to the house and deposits the paper on the back porch of the house, where it lays until a member of the family sees it and picks it up.

No special training has ever been given this dog, which is now four years old and has been in the Shoaff family since it was three weeks of age. One day a neighbor suggested that they let the dog bring the paper from the road to the house. Mrs. Shoaff took the dog down to meet Miss Maxwell several times and let him carry the paper home. Ever since that time the dog is always on the job.

JUNIOR CHAMBER TO BACK FORUM

Gov. Landon, In Letter, Thanks Group For Bid Here; Answer Later

The New Castle Junior Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a free-to-all Community Forum here during the fall and winter. It was decided at a regular meeting of the junior chamber's membership last night.

President W. Herbert Smith read to the organization a letter from Governor Alf M. Landon which told that the junior chamber's invitation to him to make New Castle a stopping point on his eastern tour had been turned over to National Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton.

After Landon was nominated at Cleveland the junior chamber urged him to visit New Castle while on his West Middlesex trip.

Carrying the presidential nominee's personal signature, the letter thanked the group for the invitation and said that within a short time a letter will come from Chairman Hamilton.

During the summer the chamber has been assembling twice monthly, once for a business meeting and once for a social program.

Sunday Record Day For Student Pilots

Airport Here Reports More Beginners That Day Than Ever Before

An all-time record for student pilot instruction was established at the New Castle airport on Sunday. More students flew a greater number of hours that day than on any previous day in the history of the airport, Findley Wilson, operator and instructor at the Parktown Corners field reported today.

There were 21 different students, Wilson said, and they flew a total of 12 hours and 35 minutes. Many of the students were New Castle residents and others came from scattered points in the state.

Among the group was William Tarr, 369 East End avenue, Beaver, who made his first solo high in the sky and won the commendation of his instructor by making a perfect landing.

Three new students were enrolled on Sunday.

Dr. Mildred Rogers of North Mercer street has returned home after a two week's "vagabond cruise" which took her and Miss Mary Vandivort of the Senior high school to Guatemala, Central America.

Returning their boat carried a tremendous load of bananas and other fruits. Miss Vandivort stayed in Philadelphia where she is visiting friends.

Flood Control Bill Delayed

Jobless Demonstrations In Senate Force Postponement Of Consideration

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, July 28.—When jobless demonstrations in the senate last night forced postponement of contemplated action on the administration's principal flood control bill, a companion control measure today was before the senate for consideration.

The bill, reported out on the floor by the appropriations committee, is the Weiss-Andrews measure calling for flood control surveys. It was amended in the appropriations committee to strike out a provision carrying a $100,000 appropriation, and as reported carries no appropriation. The bill merely authorizes the Department of Forests and Waters to conduct a survey looking to purchase of lands for potential flood control projects.

Efforts to force the main flood control bill from a senate subcommittee, planned for last night, will be made today or tomorrow, senate leaders indicated.

(Copyright, 1936, by Central Press Assn.)

NEW YORK, July 28.—At approximately this stage of every campaign old ladies of both sexes begin to moisten their thumbs and hold them aloft to see whether the first "whispering campaign" has begun to blow its sinister siroccos across the electorate. Invariably they emit a loud tech-teh and, particularly if the whispering campaign is adverse to their candidate, bemoan the fact that a campaign cannot be fought out on "the issues."

Of course, no campaign of any dimensions is ever fought out on "the issues." As a rule there are no issues. For years the Democratic and Republican platforms were so much alike that only dialecticians could become excited over the points of divergence. Men and women voted one way or another because of the geographical situation of their state, because Uncle Louis wanted to be postmaster, because one candidate's wife was to "high hat" or the other candidate's was too "low-brow"; because one candidate was rumored to be in the habit of bringing out his paper dolls in the evening and to have spent a year in the booby hatch; because another candidate talked with his teeth or his opponent slept without them; because one candidate was rumored to be on such terms of familiarity with John D. Rockefeller, Jr., that he hailed him privately as "Jack" or because his opponent had never patronized his neighborhood Kosher market.

Of such gibberish are whispering campaigns—votes and Presidents—made. Now, with enough genuine issues, issues affecting the whole future destiny of America, at stake to furnish fifty years of platforms, I suspect that the voters will use the franchise from pretty much the same motives they have used it in the past. The habit is ingrained.

So it would seem a good idea to encourage bigger and better whispering campaigns—to make them, at any rate, louder and funnier. Of course, the "whispering" is usually gross understatement. What I heard during the 1928 fracas was no whisper; it was a shout. And today the personalities which are tossed around in drawing rooms have little of the sotto voce about them.

Moreover, despite the preponderance of poppycock in the wild rumors and dreadful personal allegations which the populace digs up to make its hates articulate, I am not so sure that the instinct isn't a sound and healthy one. It is certainly a profoundly human one. A good many "irrelevant and invidious personalities" have seemed to me pretty cogent grounds—if true—upon which to base opposition to the man in question.

Usually, if the whisper begins to get as much attention in the public prints as the nebulous and academic platform pledges upon which we are in theory supposed to base our suffrage, the truth will out. At the very least the voters are able to get a new line on the kind of man the candidate is. The manner in which he reacts to the charges is an index to his character, a tip-off, perhaps, on the way in which he views the world around him.

How, then, can we avoid the use of malicious fictions by the unsuspicious for campaign purposes? How can we be sure that these cads won't make up libels in the hope that the harm will be done before the lie is nailed? It is probably true that even the most fantastic whispering campaigns have an element of symbolism in them; by which I mean that the voter who spreads the lie that Joe Doakes has hysterical crying spells every night at 11:02 is really making the much milder allegation that the man is a flighty and temperamental individual, subject to sulks and whims and hence unreliable.

Unless a good many people have suspected this already, the canard is likely to weather automatically. Moreover, if there are enough gaudy and disgraceful myths in circulation about all the candidates, the voter is apt to be so confused about whom to vote against that he will be driven to make his decision on the platforms and political philosophies, if he can make them out, of the various contenders for place at the public trough.

You Don't Need a BEAUTIFUL FACE

Beautiful features are not necessary. Real beauty comes from the inside—a healthy body, a lovely complexion and lots of pep. That is what men admire. Body poisons that are not eliminated properly are the cause of most unattractive, sallow, pimply complexions. If your blood is poisoned by wastes from constipated bowels, your skin often breaks out or looks dull and muddy.

Adierika quickly and pleasantly removes these wastes from both bowels. Adierika brings out foul matter that may have poisoned you for months, ruining your complexion and upsetting your system.

Miss E. S. Converse, Tex., says: "I have used Adierika for just two weeks and I am amazed at how it has cleared up my complexion."

Mrs. W. T. M. Louisville, Ky.: "My eyes were dull and my complexion poor. After trying Adierika almost everyone commented on my complexion. It has lost its shyness and my eyes have a new sparkle."

Let Adierika help YOU to clear up your complexion and make it smooth, clear and admirably lovely. Try Adierika for just one week and see what an amazing difference it makes in how you look and feel. Sold by all druggists and drug departments. Ecker's, New Castle Drug Company.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

GIVE YOUR CHILD ALLOWANCE

YOU TAKE your allowance from the grocer's and he probably prevails upon you to buy several things for him. You say "No" at first, after which his pleadings, cries or tantrum makes him victor. You do and go with your runabout to the amusement park and there is a contest between the child and the parent—the child getting a little more money here, a little more there, even after considerable argument and vexation.

But if that lot had known definitely just what he would have to spend, if anything, or that nothing would be bought for him; if the youngster before going to the amusement place had been given a definite sum of money, with explicit understanding that he could get no more, all the disagreeable relationships between parent and child had been avoided, the child would be happier and more independent and self-reliant, and less money would be spent by him or for him.

At what age should the child have an allowance? Depends on the child and his earlier training. He is ready for an allowance, including all his expenditures, when he has been trained to use this allowance according to a budget he has worked out with his parents.

BEGIN WITH TOT Begin with the tot. Let him have a penny, nickel, or dime, say on Saturday of each week. As soon as he can be induced to have this amount until the next "money" day, he has made the first step in preparation for an allowance. When he begins to save over several such periods in order to buy some object which he prizes, he is ready for an allowance, if he can manage himself to spend that money only for the things he had planned in the budget which he made out with the parents. One exception, perhaps: In every good allowance scheme there is an item to be known as free money or the like, a very small amount, not labeled in the budget which has been planned ahead.

It is with this amount that he should get his best education at using money. So long as he does not do himself or others harm with it, he should do about as he pleases with this small amount.

Let the allowance first cover a few essentials, later some of his clothing, such as stockings, and finally, in high school, all his clothing and other expenditures. He then might have an allowance, indeed, for a month or longer instead of for a week.

While it will be good for the child to encourage him to keep an itemized account of his expenditures, to compel him to do so before receiving his next allotment would afford undue temptation to juggle his accounts. Why tempt him to deceive?

Eleanor Talks With Former Crown Prince Wilhelm In Germany

American Swimming Star Introduced To Son Of Former Emperor Of Germany

"I Nearly Forgot To Talk" Eleanor Says, Is Taken To Beautiful Palace

By ELEANOR HOLM JARRETT (Copyright, 1936, by International News Service)

BERLIN, July 28.—Strolling along Unter Den Linden and visiting the ex-Emperor's palace as a "rubberneck" has its compensations—for today I bumped squarely into the former crown prince of Germany. The result was that I was invited to his palace at Niederlela Endischer—the former Kaiser's private property near the palace, where Friedrich Wilhelm keeps his office and reception rooms.

Almost Speechless Today, in spite of all that has happened, I am as proud as I can be. I almost forgot to talk when I was introduced to him. What happened is this:

A tall, white-haired, but good-looking, sunburned gentleman in gray shorts and white sports shirt decorated with the five Olympic rings was suddenly introduced to me as his imperial highness. There were lots of people standing around gazing, and I gradually dawned on me who he was.

Eager To Talk He had just motored to town from Potsdam, where he had Col. and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh to tea Sunday, and has he got a line:

"You don't mean to say this is America's great swimmer!" he declared. "I am eager to talk about America and the Olympics. I wish you'd come in and tell me all about it."

It was just like that. Into the palace we went, chatting of America's prospects and completely ignoring lots of important looking secretaries or something standing and sitting around the richly decorated halls.

Expresses Sorrow "I am sorry indeed that you had an unfortunate turn of fate in your own position," said the crown prince. Sensing my shock over this matter, he diverted the subject to an intriguing topic—himself.

He showed me the Hohenzollern family album and explained the various episodes when those royal photos were taken. He also had Hitler's photograph on the wall of the office.

"Gee, but you're handsome enough to get into the movies," I finally had to confess.

"Well, I have been offered several opportunities," he revealed, "but it just couldn't be done. Besides, those Kleig lights would ruin my eyes in no time."

Would Be Terrified That got us on the subject of Hollywood, and he started telling me about his dream of some day visiting the United States. "I would be terrified among New York's skyscrapers," said the crown prince, "but from what I hear about California, it must be paradise."

The Berlin hangout of the Kaiser's heir retains the old imperial atmosphere, with furniture of green and gold and silk-covered chairs, although nothing overly luxurious.

He is only there mornings, as he lives in Potsdam. He speaks perfect English.

In closing, let me say that my ideas of princes and Kaisers were always something different—that is, they were always story-book affairs living worlds apart, and princes were something for us gals to dream about.

Just Human Being But after meeting Wilhelm, I went away saying to my escorts: "Say, he's the most human being I can imagine. His sense of humor is all that one could ask."

Well, maybe I'll take some more walks around town. I might even bump into Hitler. Here's hoping. Although still deeply hurt by being left off the team, I am not having such a miserable time as I expected. I went to some night clubs with friends last night, and surprised myself by enjoying it.

Today, however, I am resuming strict training, and had a good workout in a local pool.

Many Offers I am receiving all kinds of cables of consolation from friends in America, which makes me feel happier. I have also received some movie and stage offers, but I am not going to accept until I have talked to my husband (Art Jarrett, orchestra leader).

I am not sure yet whether I wish to sacrifice my amateur standing—perhaps something may come up. I am always hoping.

No longer do the New York Yankees boast of their murderers' row being the hardest hitting collection of athletes in the major leagues. The Cleveland Indians' new murderers' row tops that of the once mighty Gothamites. ## Lewis Favored To Beat Gainer (International News Service) PITTSBURGH, July 28.—Although he holds the light heavyweight championship of the world John Henry Lewis will in all probability enter the ring no better than a 6 to 5 favorite to beat Al Gainer here on Thursday night, it was believed here today.

Pointing out that despite Gainer's slugging ability, the champion should prove much more elusive than Gainer's other opponents, the wisecracks felt Lewis would be a few notches longer in the waging.

Likely to set a new attendance record for sporting events here, the 12-round bout scheduled for Forbes Field is expected to bring a gate of approximately $40,000.

No rain has fallen in 21 years in Assuan, Egypt.

Rowe Outpitches Gomez As Tigers Fight To Keep Positions

(International News Service) NEW YORK, July 28.—Weak from the illness which forced him to toss aside his catching armor and go west for a long rest, Mickey Cochrane nevertheless is still fighting, and hopeful of pulling his lagging Detroit Tigers into the world series for the third straight time.

His announcement of plans to replace veterans with rookies unless the Tigers came out of a slump, has had immediate effect. After dropping three straight to the Boston Red Sox, the Tigers moved back from the brink of the second division by thrashing the Yankees, 9 to 1.

The Red Sox lost yesterday, when the Browns arose again, turned Giant-killers and won by 7 to 5, with a two-run rally in the eighth.

The Athletics took the only other game in the American league, putting on a real spree in trimming the White Sox, 15 to 8.

The Dodgers knocked off the Pirates again, 6 to 3. Other National league clubs were idle.

Paul Dean May Quit For Rest Of This Season

"There Is Something Wrong With My Arm", Says Youngest Member Of Dean Family

(International News Service) RANDOLPH, Mass., July 28.—Discouraged by the ineffectiveness of his twirling arm and the pain in his shoulder, Paul "Daffy" Dean, youngest member of the famous Dean brothers of the St. Louis Cardinals pitching staff, today had threatened to quit baseball for the rest of the season.

After yielding six hits to the semi-professional Fisher Shoe Company team in a charity exhibition game here, and being yanked when his team was behind 4 to 0, Paul said: "I'm no good around here. There's something wrong with my shoulder. I can't get anything on the ball. I may go home and forget it and maybe the arm will get all right during the winter."

Throughout yesterday it was hoped that the rain which fell intermittently would cease altogether but about four p. m. it commenced descending steadily and at 8:30 p. m. Promoter Askounes called off the bouts.

It is probable that Askounes will try to bring Marshall here at some future date.

Braddock And Schmeling Bout For September

Articles Signed For Heavyweight Championship Fight In Garden Bowl

(International News Service) NEW YORK, July 28.—For the first time since the days when Jack Dempsey ruled the flatfoot roost, the heavyweight title is once again a million dollar asset.

This was brought about yesterday when the directors of Madison Square Garden and its arch rival, the 20th Century Sporting club, agreed to bury the hatchet elsewhere than in each other's skulls and signed for a joint promotion of the Braddock-Schmeling fight at the Garden bowl sometime between September 24 and 30.

This contract was a moral victory for Mike Jacobs of the 20th Century, for by its terms he broke the chains which the Garden has held on all champions since the days of Jack Dempsey.

Olympic Coaches Quit Quarreling

Head Coach Lawson Robertson
Buries Hatchet With
Snyder And Hayes

Olympic Athletes Need
Training Badly, Track
Is In Very Bad
Shape

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service
Sports Editor

BERLIN, July 28.—That long-threatened show-down among America's quarreling Olympic coaches was abandoned today. I understand Head Coach Lawson Robertson decided that to force the issue would have a bad effect on the athletes almost on the eve of the games' inauguration Saturday.

Up to now he was inclined to ask E. C. Hayes of Indiana, for his resignation and to bar Larry Snyder from the American camp, claiming undue interference on the part of the Ohio State mentor.

Snyder Adamant
Snyder, left off the official coaching list by Robertson, is here unofficially as the handler of Jesse Owens and Dave Albritton, but finally the committee gave him a rather vague status as a helper-out.

"Make no mistake about this," said the defiant Snyder, "Ohio State has paid my way here to handle Owens and Albritton. I'm going to handle them."

Hayes is understood to have incurred Robertson's disapproval by running Don Lash Sunday and again yesterday at 7 o'clock in the morning before the Indiana lad had breakfast.

Hayes' handling of the middle-distance is a hard-boiled system—give them plenty of running, is his idea, whereas Robertson's method seems to be to coddle and conserve the runners.

Must Be Careful
However, Robertson admits he cannot overwork the tracksters now, as they fattened up during the trip over, and they have encountered rainy weather here, which is continuing today.

The track is in terrible condition, and cannot be used at all for hurdlings by Forrest Towns and the others.

Neither are the sprinters able to sprint, because they are afraid of suffering leg pulls in the ruts and loose soil. They may transfer their training activities to the better track at the sports field.

Lash Eases Up
Lash did not run this morning, but worked out twice later in the day with the other track men. Robertson's idea is that a man should not exercise violently at an hour when his resistance and vitality are low.

The rain not only ruined the track, but forced the team to bring out their spare suits, which others now having become well soiled.

Harold Manning's cold is beginning to break up, but the Kansas steeplechaser has lost weight, which he can not afford. Fred Pollard's injured leg will be given a trial over the hurdles tomorrow, but the Chicagoan will start in the Olympics anyhow.

Besides keeping everyone confined, the rain has also provided an unfortunate contrast to the heat of the American tryouts, where the men used to heat were at their best. It was like changing from a hot-house to a cold shower.

Ellison, "Tarzan" Brown of Rhode Island, made an inspection trip over the marathon course, and made the discovery that the grind starts on two successive hills, the second of which is almost perpendicular. This should eliminate all save the best at the outset, and then the race finishes on another hill which ought to kill off most of the survivors.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Helen Willis Moody, many times winner of the English and American tennis championships stated at San Francisco today she has decided to pass up the 1936 national tournament, and indicated she is through with major competition.

Calling off the Marshall-Sunooka bout cost Promoter Peter Askew a nice penny. So far his wrestling efforts have not been financial gains and fans hoped he would get a break but rain prevented this last night.

Farrell Boosters club will hold an amateur boxing show at Farrell tonight. The Boosters have one of the best organizations in the country and devote the gains to worthy causes.

Australia remains in the running for the International tennis trophy it last won in 1929 owing to a doubles win by Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist over the English combination of Pat Hughes and Charles Tuckey at Wimbledon.

Owing to an umpire being struck by a pop bottle, baseball officials have ruled all beverages must be served only in paper containers. This rule has been in effect in Pennsylvania boxing arenas for years.

Charles H. Knapp, president of the International Baseball league, died in a Baltimore hospital last night. He was aged 62 and had been ill for months with heart trouble.

Sam Leyshock, county detective of Mercer county and referee, visited Tom McMahon, ex-heavyweight fighter when Leyshock was returned from a police convention to Sharon.

In a friendly threesome with Willie Auchterlonie and Gordon Lockhart, Bobby Jones, the Atlanta show a 72 before a thrill packed gallery of 3,000 at St. Andrews, Scotland.

Hillville And Bessemer Tie

J. Pepe Goes Entire Route For Hillville In 6-6
Game

Bessemer and Hillville played a 6-6 deadlock in a Lawrence County Baseball League set to at Hillville. Hillville got to D. Nord and Snyder gave him relief. J. Pepe pitched for Hillville, fanned four and allowed nine hits. The Bessemer hurlers were found for 10 hits.

Hillville was behind by one run up to the fourth when their willows began working and before the frame was ended they had made five runs boosting their score to six, which was four more than Bessemer had. Bessemer worked their third run across in the fifth and in a futile assault to win, made three runs which, however, was sufficient to tie the game.

The extra base hits were doubles, poled by Tropea and H. Marshall. T. Galazia, Meyer and Tropea executed a neat double play. The box score:

Was Lynched For Murder Although His Victim Lived

Musty Records Reveal Plight
Of Gambler Who Shot Citizen

(International News Service)
SACRAMENTO, Cal.—Lynched for murder—yet his "victim" lived! Musty records recently uncovered here revealed that in 1850 Frederick J. Roe, a professional gambler, shot Charles H. Myers, a peaceful citizen, when the latter attempted to stop a fight between Roe and another man.

Because of the popularity of Myers, a crowd quickly gathered and demanded Roe be hanged for the shooting, although Myers still was alive.

Using every means at his command, N. C. Cunningham, the city marshal, appeared on the scene, pleaded for law and order and finally succeeded in spiriting Roe off to the bastille.

But still the crowd howled. A jury was hastily summoned and goaded to action by the yells and curses of 2,500 men and women outside quickly returned a verdict of murder—although Myers still lived.

The mob then stormed the jail, seized Roe took him several paces away and hanged him to a tree.

It was not until several days later that Myers, the "murdered" man, died.

Amendment Bill Handed To Earle

Joint Conference Approves
Of Bill To Make Possible
Frequent Amendments

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 28.—Gov. George H. Earle's signature was all that remained today to complete the first step in a legislative drive to make possible more frequent amendment of the state constitution.

Both houses of the legislature last night approved a joint conference committee's report providing that constitutional amendments may be submitted to the voters after passage by a majority of the members of two successive legislatures. Constitutional amendments under the present restrictions may be submitted to the voters only once in five years.

The report on the resolution, which was introduced by Sen. George L. Reed, R., Dauphin, received a vote of 39 to 4 in the senate. Concurrence was unanimous in the house.

Governor Earle's approval of the resolution will enable the regular session in January to act upon the proposal. A deadlock resulting from a Democratic plan to permit submission of amendments to the electorate following approval of a two-thirds vote of one session, or a majority vote of two sessions, sent the resolution to the conference committee.

'Thrill Slayers' Held For Court

Five Members Of Black Legion Ordered Held For Killing Of Negro

(International News Service)

DETROIT, July 28.—Five members of the Black Legion were ordered held for trial on first degree murder charges here today after Dayton Dean, squat executioner for the cult, testified in a crowded courtroom they had killed a negro for a "thrill".

Those held were Harvey Davis, reputed "colonel" of the secret society; Erwin D. Lee, John Bannerman, James Roy Lorraine and Charles Rouse.

Victim of the murder was Silas Coleman, a negro World War veteran. Coleman, Dean said, was lured to a swamp in Livingston county and shot and killed because Davis "wanted to know how it would feel to shoot a negro."

Davis, Lee and Bannerman also were among the group of 13 Black Legionnaires ordered held for trial for the night-ride slaying of Charles A. Poole, a WPA worker, last May.
